

JWR Construction Services, Inc. Announces Promotion of Rich Holtfreter to Project Manager

Rich Holtfreter

As Project Manager, Rich Holtfreter is responsible for supervision of the firm's implementation of the 73-acre Master Plan for Johnson & Wales University in North Miami. In addition to handling all scheduling and direct oversight of all contractors and tradesman, he will also manage a variety of other on-going remodeling and reconstruction projects at the University, including dormitory, teaching facility and other building improvements.

Rich joined JWR Construction in 1993 and has served as Project Superintendent for the past decade. Previously, he owned and operated a company specializing in drywall installation, was a crew foreman for various South Florida construction companies, and served as warehouse manager for a major furniture retailer where he was responsible for inventory management and scheduling. He also served nine years with the U.S. Air Force attaining the rank of Technical Sgt. Rich resides in Deerfield Beach, Florida.

JWR Construction Services, Inc., founded in 1985 and affiliated with Gallo Architects & Development Consultants and GD Enterprises, has earned a strong reputation as a full-service construction management, design/build and general contracting corporation. In-house, experienced professionals are fully versed in all phases of a project, from pre-construction site due diligence through owner occupancy. Today, the company has amassed a portfolio of completed commercial and residential projects comprising millions of square feet of space. JWR Construction Services, Inc. was recently awarded a series of high-profile projects in addition to the Johnson & Wales University Master Plan, including a 20-bed rehabilitation hospital for Catholic Health Services in Lauderdale Lakes, and the exclusive Shoppes at Silver Isles in Miramar.

For more information, contact JWR Construction Services, Inc. at (954) 480-2800 or visit www.gdjwr.com.